Information Required

In addition to the information relative to the reproduction (number of pages, and number of copies of those pages), the application should contain full bibliographical details:

- Title of the publication, i.e. book, journal, magazine, etc.
- Title of the article, if reproduction is from a journal or magazine;
- ISBN of book, or ISSN of journal/magazine;
- Author(s)/Editor(s) of the book or author(s) of the article

Licensing of Universities

Blanket Licence

- Umbrella licence (managing the risk)
- Authorises reproduction in advance but requires retrospective reporting
- Payment of fixed fee per Full-time Equivalent Student (FTES)
- Based on Full Reporting

Licensing of Universities

How should licensed reproduction be reported?

In addition to the information relative to the reproduction (number of pages, and number of copies of those pages), the report to the Institution's Copyright Officer should contain full bibliographical details:

- Title of the publication, i.e. book, journal, magazine etc.;
- Title of the article, if reproduction is from a journal or magazine;
- ISBN of book, or ISSN of journal/magazine;
- Author(s)/Editor(s) of the book or author(s) of the article

Licensing of Universities

What is Licensable?

- Course packs or readers, i.e. compilation works containing extracts from a variety of published sources, distributed to students;
- Single Item Handouts, i.e. journal or magazine articles, or extracts from books, in excess of the reproduction quota determined by Regulation (Section 13 of the Copyright Act);

Licensing of Universities

What is Licensable?

- Transient (for the duration of the course or module) electronic copies for printing out substantially identical paper copies, either by lecturers, or by the students themselves. A typical example of this is the posting of works on the Institution's password-protected, secure internal networks;
- Placing of copies (single items and/or compilation works) in the library's short loan section (i.e. reserve) for on-copying by students; and
- Alternative-format copies for the visually impaired.

Licensing of Universities

Extent of Copying

- From a book, a maximum of one chapter if the book is divided into chapters, or approximately 10% if there is no chapter division;
- From a journal or magazine, the complete article (one or more) required;
- From a collection of law reports or statutes, the complete report or statute (one or more) required;
- From an anthology or volume of short stories or poetry, the complete;
- Short story or the complete poem.

Licensing of Universities

What happens if a larger portion of a book is required for reproduction?

- Should more than one chapter (or 10%) of a book be required, application should be made to DALRO for a transactional licence in the usual manner;
- There may be cases where DALRO would be able to justify extended reproduction from a book under the blanket licence. However, if this is not possible, reproduction of a larger portion of a book may not go ahead before special permission has been obtained.
