Cooperation in Human Resource Development

With the globalization of the world economy, business activities and R&D activities have increased and the importance of protecting IP rights on a global scale is ever increasing.

For the developing countries, it is essential to implement obligations under the WTO/TRIPS Agreement as well as improve the operational structure of their IP systems. In particular, human resources development which underpins these matters is extremely important.

Against this background, since FY1996, the Japan Patent Office (JPO) as part of the technical cooperation under Article 67 of the TRIPS Agreement has supported human resources development in the field of intellectual property for developing countries mainly in the Asian Pacific Region. In the 15 years up to FY2010, 3500 trainees from developing countries have completed the IP training program organized by the JPO.

Various textbooks used in the above-mentioned support programs and research papers written by the long-term trainees are posted on this website. It is also possible to communicate with the alumni and send information through the Facebook.

We hope that many people will use the website and utilize the information provided for promotion activities in the field of intellectual property as well as deepen the understanding of the JPO's cooperation in human resources development.

The JPO will continue to provide support for strengthening the IP systems in developing countries mainly in the Asian Pacific Region and contribute to their further economic development.

✓ For increasing public awareness of the health and safety risks of counterfeit products.

Honmono – genuine goods

WIPO's new manga, written and illustrated by Ms. Emiko Iwasaki, tells the story of how a young shop employee witnesses first hand the menace of fake products, how easily customers are duped into buying them and the serious harm they can cause.

English and Japanese versions were published in September 2011. Arabic, Chinese, French, Russian and Spanish versions will be published in the coming months.

"Ms. Iwasaki drew a fantastic manga... I hope that by reading it, more people will have a better understanding of the dangers of purchasing fake goods and realize that they can make a difference and help reduce the harm these goods cause. (Mr. Ken-Ichiro Natsume, Japan Patent Office)

"General understanding of the importance of protecting IP rights will help build support for creative activities which will enrich all our lives." (Mr. Teiji Hayashi, Japan Ministry of Foreign Affairs)

IP Advantage – Case studies on Intellectual Property

The IP Advantage database provides a one-stop gateway to case studies that chronicle the intellectual property (IP) experiences of inventors, creators, entrepreneurs and researchers from across the globe. The case studies offer insights into how IP works in the real world and how its successful exploitation can contribute to development.

IP Advantage is a joint project developed by WIPO's Communications Division and the WIPO Japan Office, based on a proposal from Japan and supported by the Japan Funds-in-Trust for Industrial Property. It aims to promote a better understanding of how to create and protect intellectual property and reap the benefits provided by the IP system.

Please contact us to submit feedback and suggestions for new case studies.

FEATURED STUDIES

Protecting Society and the Environment with a Geographical Indication

For hundreds of years, production of argan oil was only on a local, household scale. It was not until the early 1990s that women started to form cooperatives to better organize the production and commercialization of argan oil. Mechanized cooperatives changed the lives of women in southwestern Morocco. They started to expand their market reach beyond the local level, and grocers and exporters took notice. Protected by a geographical indication, argan oil has come to represent a chance for economic and social freedom for many rural women. > Full Story
