ROSE RAMLI (MS.)

Ms. Rose Ramli is Deputy Director of IP Academy Singapore.

She graduated from the National University of Singapore with an honors degree in Science.

After graduation, she joined the university's Industry and Technology Relations Office (INTRO), (now the Industry Liaison Office ILO) to handle publicity and publications; essentially to bring the public and industry's attention to the research output of the University. Her scope expanded to include the administration of the University's invention disclosure process – filtering invention disclosures for approval for patent filing, liaising with inventors, the review committee & patent agents. Her next position at the National Science and Technology Board allowed her the opportunity to get involved in IP-related work at a national level. She was actively involved in promoting “technopreneurship”, looking into the infrastructure changes that would support an innovative entrepreneurial culture.

In 2001, she was awarded an M Sc. In Management of IP from Queen Mary College, University of London and thereafter joined the Intellectual Property Office of Singapore (IPOS) heading the Capability Development Department as its Director. The Department grew from looking after internal competencies & knowledge building to actively building IP competencies in all sectors and in partnership with international partners. The past 2 years have seen her directly involved in the IP Academy (Singapore) as its Deputy Director. Key projects that have come to fruition under her care were the development of the IP Academy’s portfolio of foundation programs and core skills programs in patent drafting, IP for the creative industry and government IP management.
