

General Statement of the International Publishers Association

My name is José Borghino and I am the new Secretary General of the International Publishers Association. The IPA works to protect and promote both copyright and the freedom to publish. We will continue to work closely and constructively with WIPO and the Member States to find suitable and practical solutions to the issues on the WIPO agenda. Thank you.