

Mr. FX Nuttall

Digital copyright expert FX Nuttall founded Quansic in 2019 in a quest to provide highly reliable metadata services to the music industry.

As an ISNI Registration Agency, Quansic is focused on Artists and songwriters identification serving record labels, publishers and streaming services.

Prior to founding Quansic, Nuttall served as Technical Program Manager for YouTube, helping them become the first industry layer to adopt the new ISNI Standard.

He also served as Google's representative on the Board of Directors of DDEX. Before this, he spent 10 years as an independent consultant to various international copyright organizations in the field of copyright, including CISAC.

Nuttall also founded and served as CEO of AudioSoft, a U.S.-based company that pioneered digital copyright on the internet.